

Zozo Angelidou

Zozo has been advising private clients, domestic and international, focusing mainly in commercial, real estate and inheritance law issues. Her private practice includes purchase and sale of properties, commercial and residential lease agreements, as well as advisory work with respect to inheritance, wealth transfer planning, tax and real estate law. She also represents foreign trusts and advises on related legal matters.

She is an experienced and highly respected litigator, representing clients before all Greek Courts and has handled numerous cases on civil, commercial and real estate law, contract disputes, as well as tort and debt collection.

She has successfully served for more than 10 years as chief legal counsel of a major TV channel and other radio and music companies, acquiring thus important expertise in broadcast law and intellectual property matters.

Zozo has graduated from the Athens University Law School in 1983 and was admitted to the Athens Bar Association in 1985.

She is fluent in Greek and English.